Principal's Message

March Character Pillar: Fairness

As we move into the month of March, we'll begin to celebrate and teach our new character pillar Fairness.

So what does it mean to show fairness at TEACH?

The TEACH student who shows fairness begins the school day by finding a seat at a table and waits for class to start. If another student tries to sit at the same table, this student scoots over to make room for them. If the student who prioritizes fairness hears a rumor during the school day, they make sure that they hear all sides of the story before making a judgement. This student would not contribute to spreading misinformation that another person would not appreciate. The fair TEACH student truly shines at lunch on pizza day. They recognize that there is only enough pizza for all students to have one slice. While it may be tempting to sneak back in line to try to get a second, they recognize that if they have another slice then it would mean a different student may go without one. They would never do that to a fellow TEACH student. We have each other's backs, and that's what separates TEACH Academy.

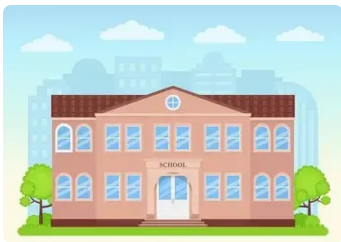

Mr. Gomez, Interim Principal

The Reading Corner

Reading Corner: Picture the Reading

Time: 5–10 minutes

Purpose: Help children visualize what they read to improve understanding and memory

Step 1: Read a Short Section (3–4 minutes)

Have your child read a paragraph or page from their book or homework assignment. Reading can be aloud or silent.

Step 2: Make a Mental Movie (2 minutes)

After reading, ask your child: “What did you see in your mind while reading?”

Encourage them to describe:

- The setting
- The characters or people
- What was happening

If helpful, they can quickly sketch what they imagined on paper.

Step 3: Describe the Scene (2–3 minutes)

Ask follow-up questions such as:

- What did the place look like?
- How did the character seem to feel?
- What details helped you picture it?

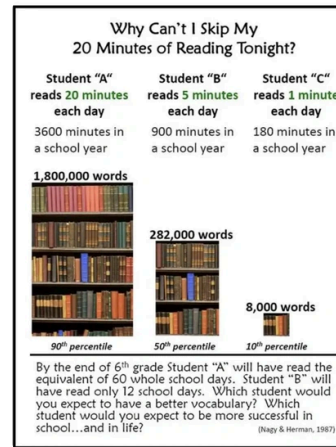

This helps children connect words to meaning.

Step 4: Check Understanding (1 minute)

Finish with:

“Did your picture change as you read?”

This encourages flexible thinking and deeper comprehension.

An Affinity for Culture, by Dr. Jason Garcia - Assistant Principal

Some of the greatest lessons are derived from seconds of interaction. Teachers may spend hours upon hours planning and preparing to deliver a lesson that should change the very trajectory of a student's life. Selecting or formulating questions that will invigorate the metacognitive dimensions of student thinking. We at TEACH are heavy on reflection which is the life blood of personal development, isn't it ironic that reflection also enhances the prowess of even experienced professionals. Asking a student why they choose to share their snacks with other students or why they felt the urge to giggle during a lesson, may open a door of understanding that can never be closed. I have seen a student learn a life lesson in seconds, a positive one, one that they will remember at 38 years old when their teacher is old and grey. I remember some of the wisdom shared with me, for when a student reports a behavior that they once struggled with, empathy has found its boomerang cycle. Looking back helps us learn to step forward with more efficiency and effectiveness. In math class, some of the errors one makes become areas of strength on the next test. Failure is an excellent teacher, when the student is ready the teacher will appear, when the student is truly ready the teacher will disappear. When a completion of a grade level happens, a teacher falls off like training wheels on an old rusty bike. Thus the disappearance of a teacher in a student's life is a sign of evolution. Many of my students have left me in their proverbial rear view mirror, although most of them can't yet drive. I am proud to be left in their dust, as the next generation should be better than we were. I have to admit many times that my students are farther ahead than I was at their same age. Yes, I did not have a cell phone at their age, however when I reflect, I see that I am a small part of their journey, just as my teachers were a small part of mine. It was those short periods of time that still resonate with me today, that remind me I am just an old rusty training wheel that will fall off when a student achieves balance. I am very proud when they don't need us anymore. A disappearing act that continues to circulate, as I was once part of the legacy of great teaching.
